BAYAO RESORT
Health station community of Bajau people
Individual Project
Location:Basilan island

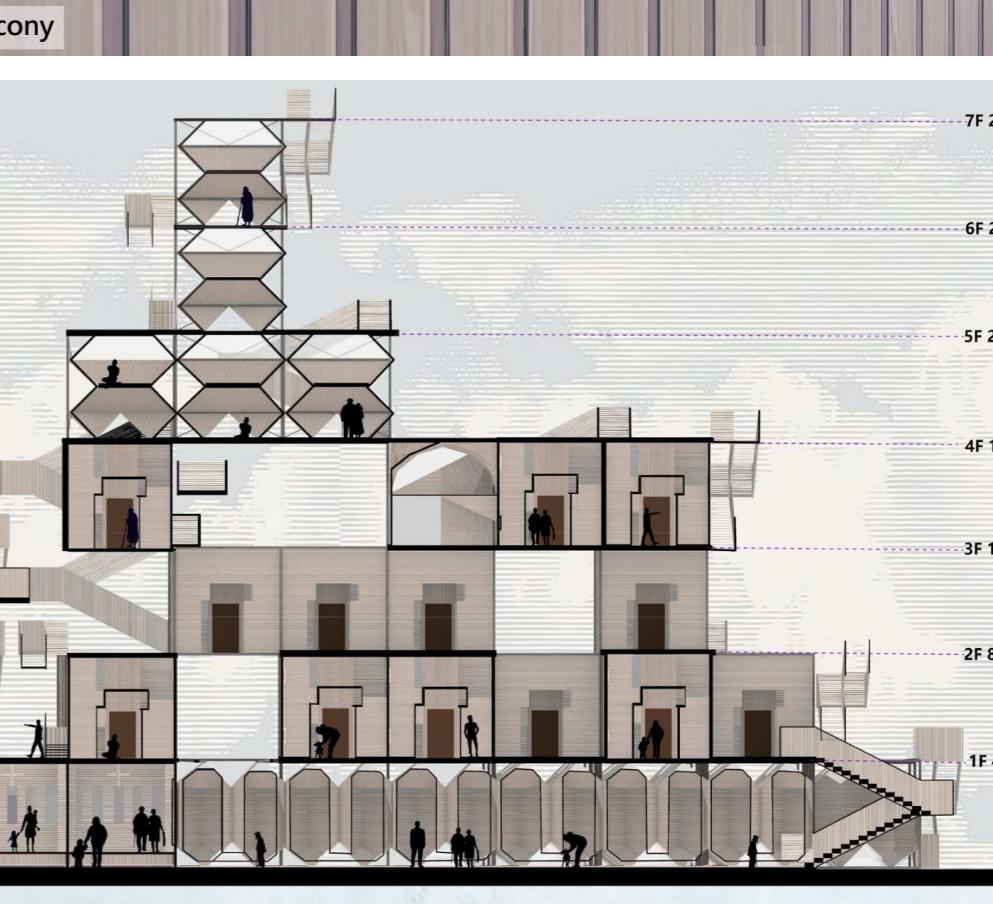

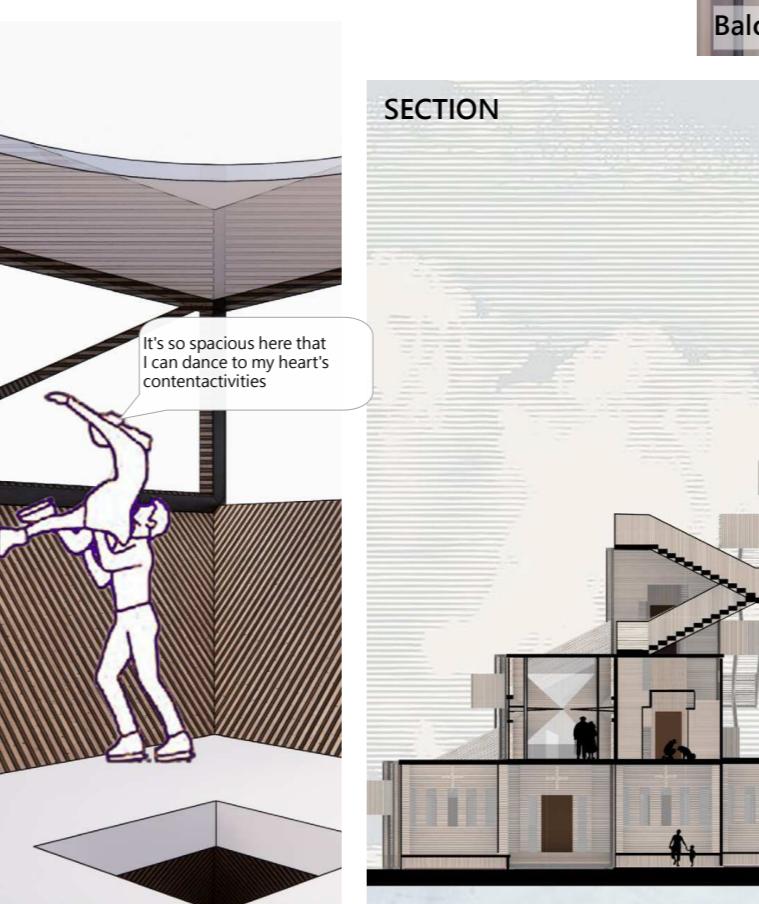

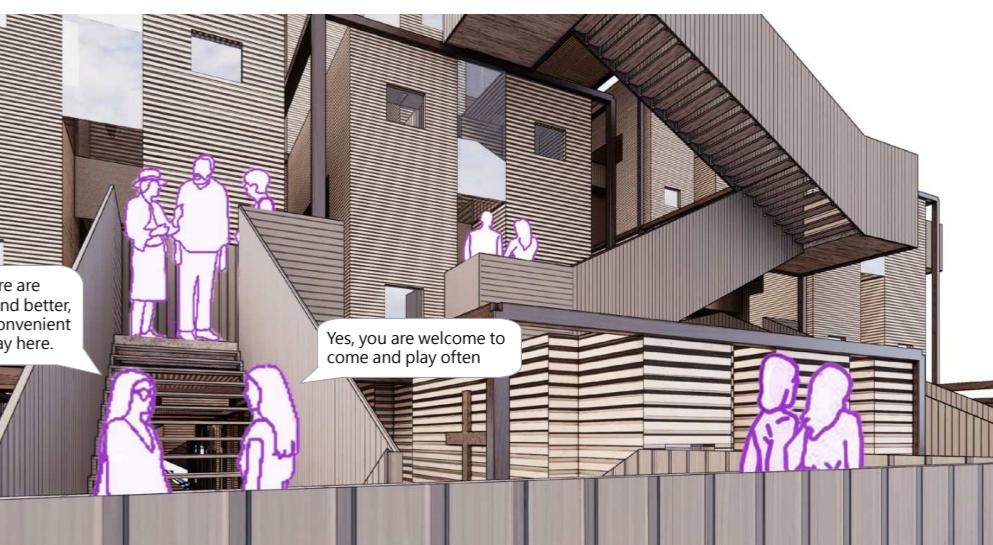

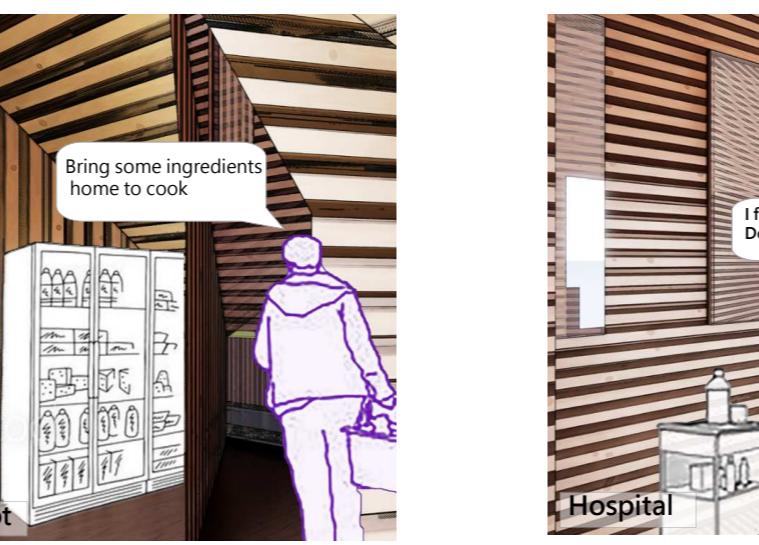

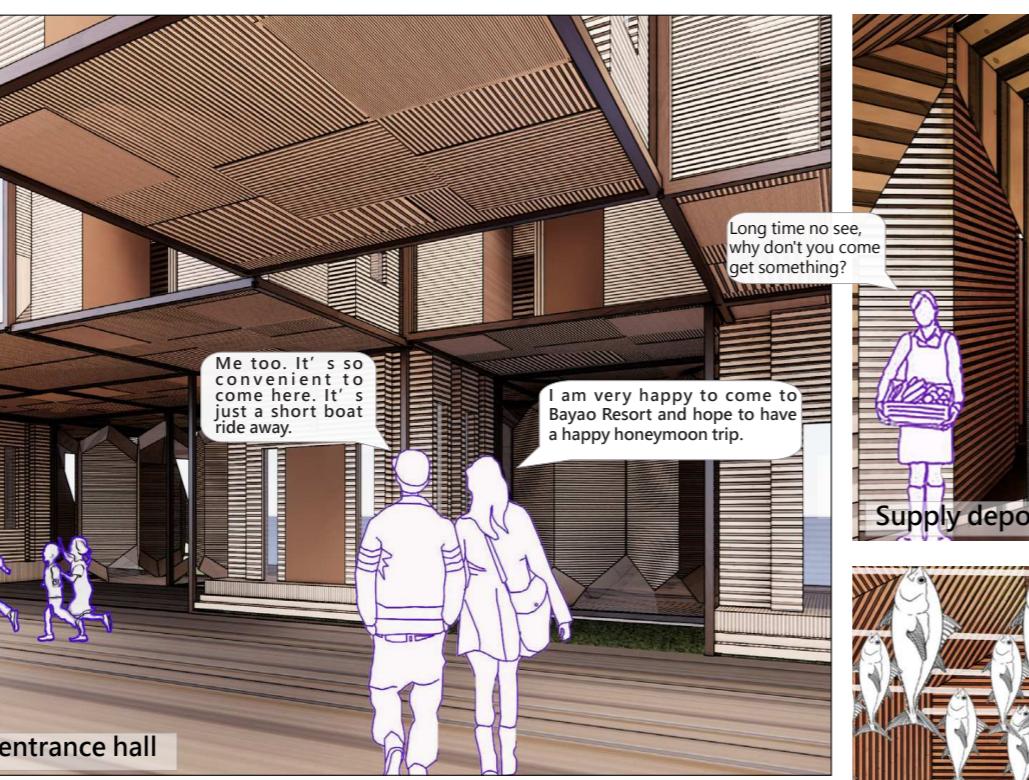

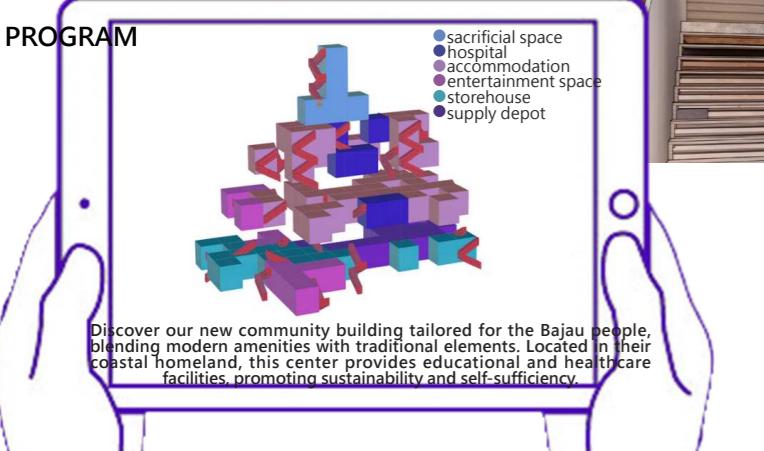

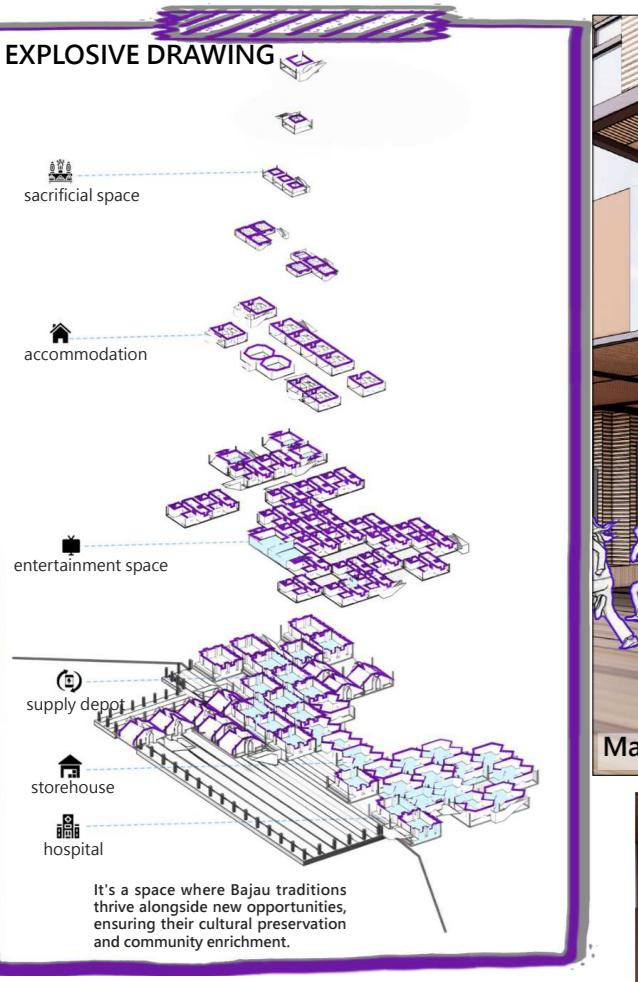

"This project is an archipelago located in the southern Philippines. It serves the stateless maritime nomads - the Bajau people. They are an ethnic group in Southeast Asia. They live in the waters between the Philippines, Malaysia and Indonesia. Most of them make a living by diving into the sea and fishing. They do not receive education or medical services throughout their lives. This project is committed to providing a living place for the Bayao people and helping the Bayao people improve their quality of life."

SKYPARK

Skyscraper Of Water Park Community

Location:Guilin Guangxi China
Individual Project

I hope this solution can solve the disasters caused by El Nino in the region all year round, by converting groundwater into water for residents and water for water park facilities. This project is a conceptual design for a high-rise aquatic park located in Guangxi, China, addressing three significant social issues in the region: the prevalence of left-behind children, the high number of empty-nest elderly, and frequent flooding due to excessive rainfall in the southern coastal area. The building integrates these challenges into a multifunctional vertical structure that not only serves as an entertainment hub but also provides essential services.

VERTICAL PROGRAM STRATEGY

This innovative structure offers a multi-purpose solution, where the lower levels are dedicated to education, providing a safe and nurturing environment for children. The upper levels are designed for elderly care, ensuring that seniors receive the support and companionship they need.

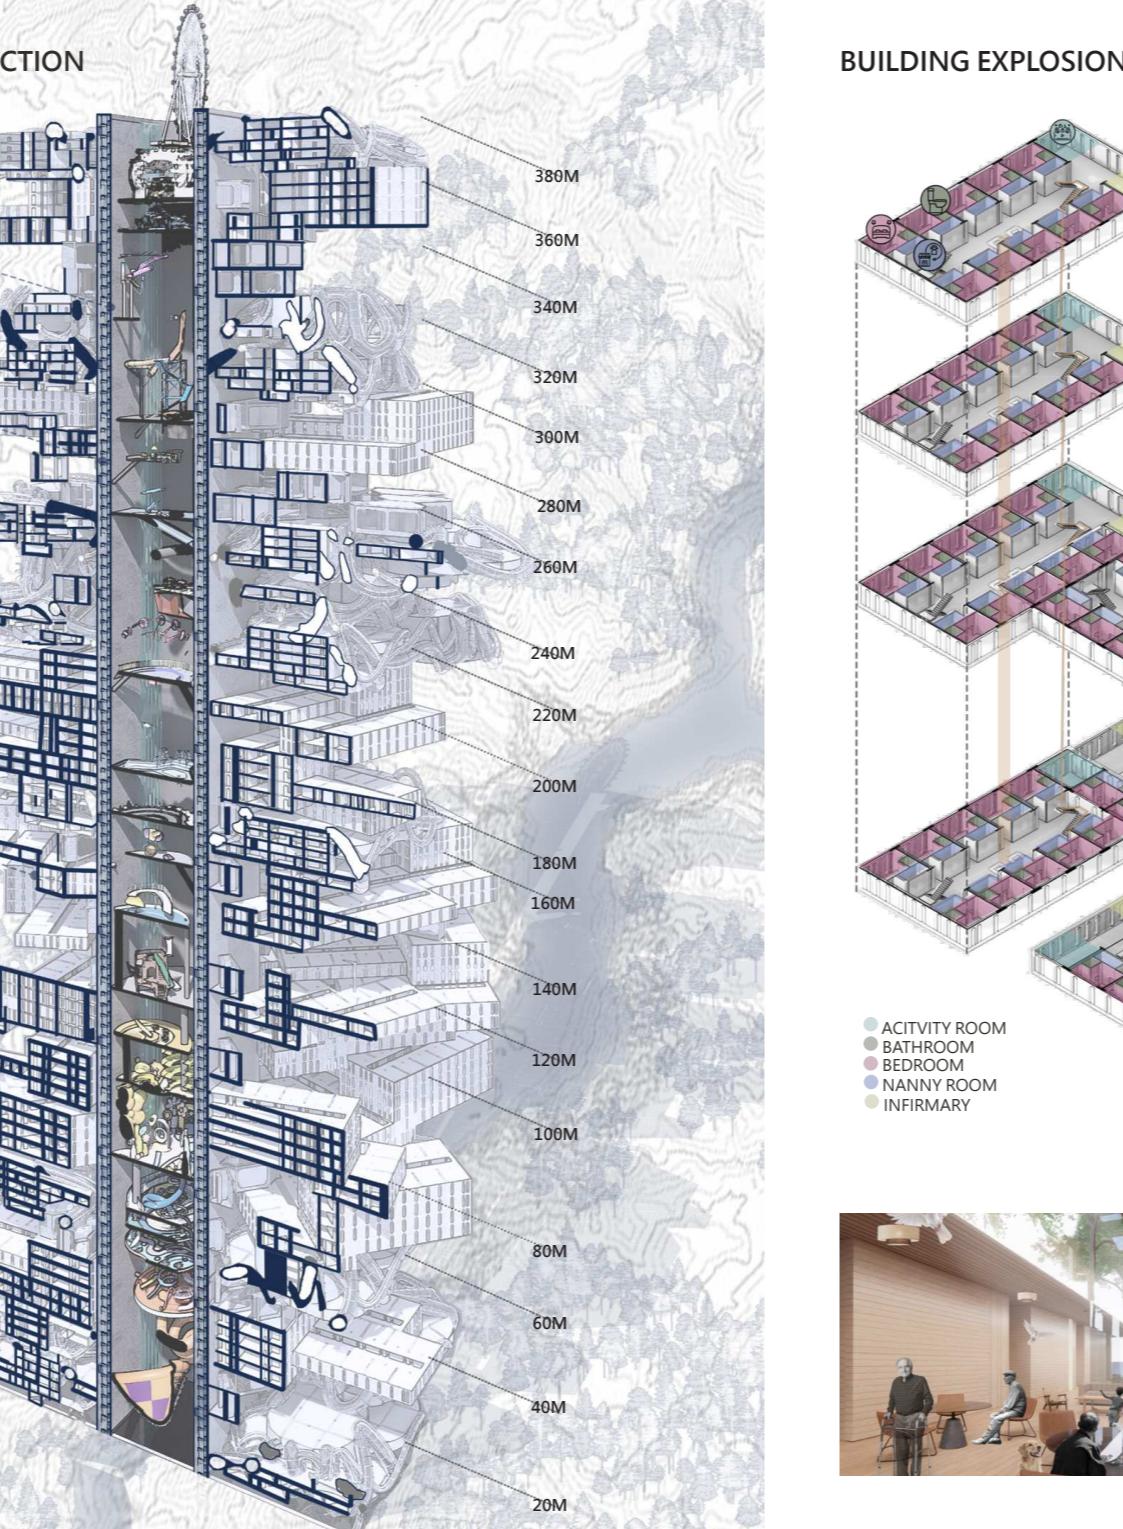

The building's design integrates a forward-thinking approach to architecture, where social responsibility and environmental adaptation come together to create a space that supports and uplifts the local population.

The central water park not only serves as an entertainment venue but also as a communal area where different generations can interact, fostering a strong sense of community. This project represents a forward-thinking approach to architecture, where social responsibility and environmental adaptation come together to create a space that supports and uplifts the local population.

Fusion
Cantonese Opera Cultural Centre
Individual Project
Location: GuangZhou Guandong China

"Cantonese architecture, an important part of Lingnan culture, carries a long history and rich cultural heritage. With the advancement of urbanization, more and more historic buildings are in need of restoration and renovation. In this process, integrating Cantonese opera culture into the renovation of Cantonese architecture is not only a means of preserving traditional art but also an innovative way to pass on local cultural traditions."

Cantonese opera, one of Guangzhou's regional performing arts, is renowned for its unique charm and performance style both domestically and internationally. When the historical elements of Cantonese architecture are combined with the modern interpretations of Cantonese opera, these architectural spaces transform into multidimensional cultural stages. The restored courtyards, ancient rooftops, and intricate carvings not only preserve the memory of the past but also provide a fresh space for Cantonese opera performances. This fusion presents a culturally rich artistic atmosphere to audiences and provides more opportunities for the development of Cantonese opera, showcasing a harmonious coexistence of tradition and modernity."

ENDERING

Guangfu architecture, as a unique carrier of Lingnan culture, not only holds rich historical memories but also embodies deep cultural significance. With the accelerating pace of urbanization, many old buildings face the challenge of renovation and preservation. However, the transformation of Guangfu architecture is not about spatial updates; it is also a revival and continuation of cultural heritage.

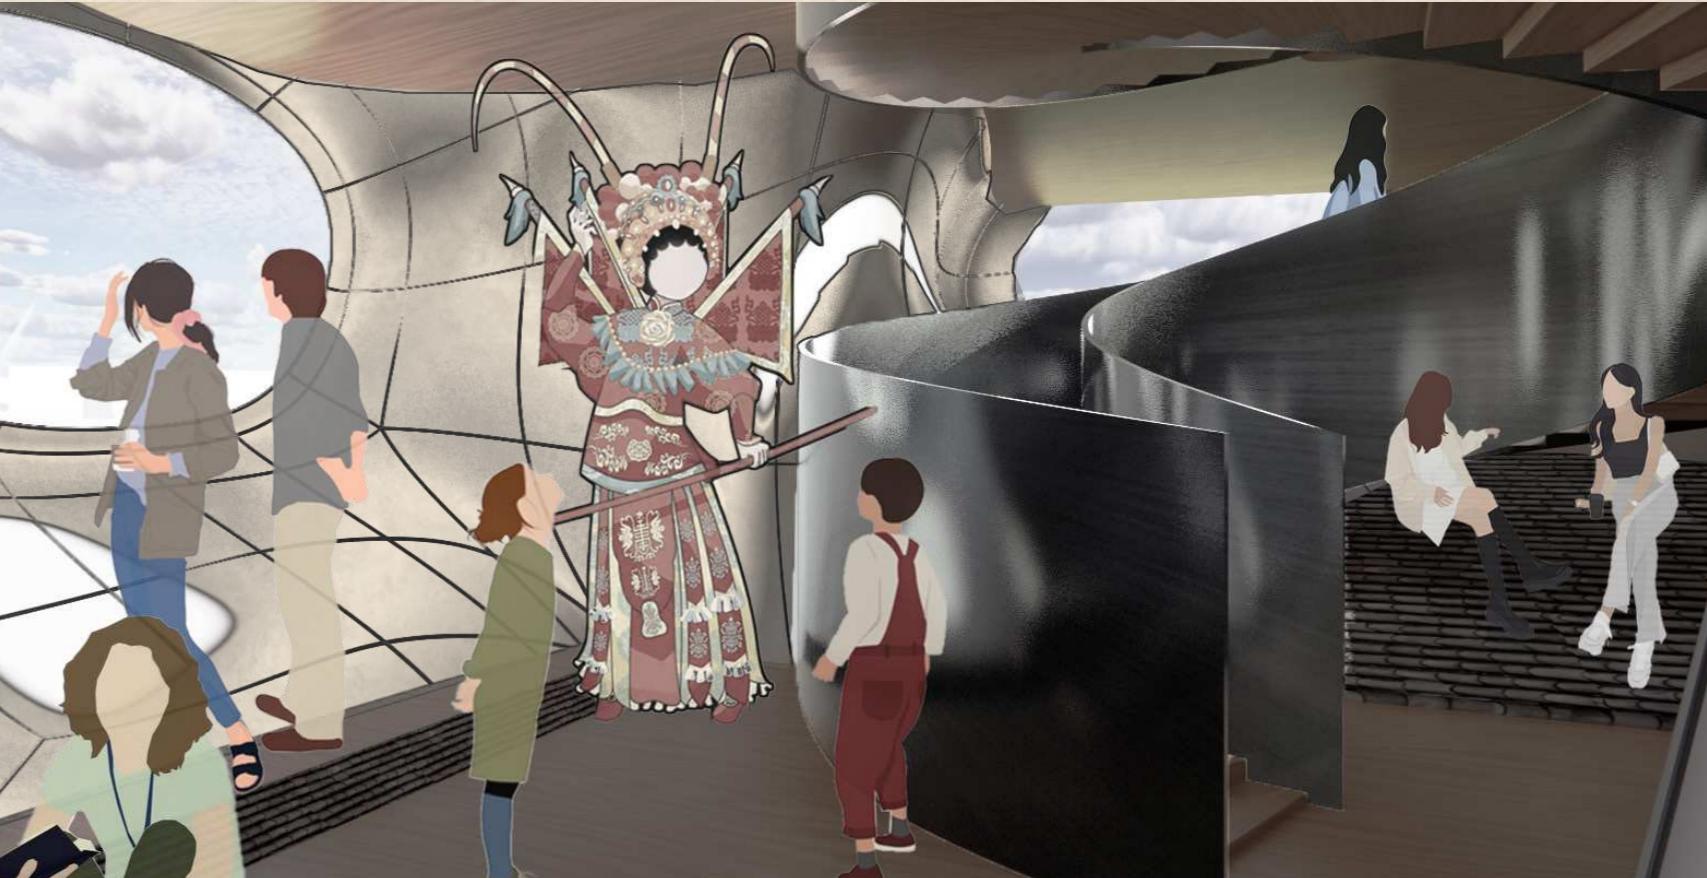

Cantonese opera, a vital symbol of Guangfu culture, has withstood the test of time and remains a living tradition in the region. It is not only an artistic expression in the daily lives of Lingnan people but also represents the unique human spirit of Guangfu. Nowadays, many architectural renovation projects are beginning to incorporate Cantonese opera into their design concepts, blending traditional artistic elements with modern architectural solutions. This integration ensures that Cantonese opera continues to thrive in the fabric of contemporary cities.
